Daryle Lambert, the founder of Daryle Lambert's Antique and Collectibles Club, Inc. has been around antiques, fine art and collectibles for most of his life. He made his fortune early in the Kentucky oil fields and later owned a very successful brokerage firm in Kentucky. He left the business world when he realized his passion for both antiques and helping people was not being fulfilled in an office. His fascinating book, 31 Steps to Your Millions in

Antiques and Collectibles

available here, tells all about his adventures. Daryle shares his inside knowledge of antiques and collectibles and his 31 Steps show you how to change your life.

Ondre Huston, works closely with Daryle. She is responsible for the financial side of the corporation as well as editing or writing much of the content you see on the website. Ondre has worked for various non profit groups for many years, both in accounting and publications. She has a lifelong interest in fine art and collectibles and loves tapping into Daryle's vast store of knowledge.

Bob Zehnder, is head of Technical Operations. He oversees infrastructure, site architecture and IT. Bob is President and CTO of Hodgson Consulting & Solutions, a Technology and Business consulting firm. Bob realized early in his life he had a passion for collecting and while working with Daryle he has gained a greater appreciation for fine arts.
