

Who Will You Follow?

One of the most frequent questions people ask me these days is, “Why did I write a book and form the Daryle Lambert’s Antique and Collectibles Club at my age, instead of retiring like others do?”

Daryle is a true character who is larger-than life and full of stories and advice. Read all about his adventures in the antiques world and how he has helped c

In my life, I have been blessed with many wonderful opportunities, but with those blessings comes a great responsibility. Jesus taught, “Where much is given, much is required.” In light of that, I see that my own experiences have demonstrated to me that when I’ve helped others, it inevitably came back to me in some way. One cannot out give the Giver of all blessings.

Throughout my 45 years in the business world, I have seen countless people invest years of dedicated effort in an occupation, only to find the actual rewards they receive are not nearly as great as they had initially anticipated. They don’t seem to realize their lives could be much more fulfilling if they discovered and developed the abilities lying hidden within them.

We all have far more potential than we realize. Applied correctly, even relatively modest efforts can have a very positive impact on our financial means, with no need to overhaul an already very busy life.

My last 45 years as a business owner has provided me with considerable practical business knowledge, much of it in the field of antiques and collectibles. Buying and selling valuable articles has rewarded me with many comforts. I have also watched many friends and associates dramatically improve their lifestyles while engaged in similar endeavors. And there was little need for any of us to sacrifice or set aside other important things while pursuing those endeavors, though all of us enjoyed great accomplishments. It can be the same for anyone following the steps outlined in my book and by joining the Club.

My desire is that with the knowledge obtained from my book and from the other resources available through the Club, anyone can have the future they desire if they simply decide to take their journey with us.

My purpose in creating the Club was to establish an enterprise that can help people be able to accomplish more with less effort. Imagine being in a position where things are simply taken care of. College is taken care of. Any medical event is financially taken care of. Long-term-care needs for you or your parents are taken care of. Or, imagine having sufficient financial means to meet all of your needs so you can relax and enjoy your golden years of life.

Our primary focus is to provide education, backed with related services, so people can learn to live the life that they now only dream of.

The first element in fulfilling the Club's purpose was to introduce a book that teaches practical principles anyone can use, not only to develop additional net worth, but to also create a pathway that can then lead to substantial personal wealth, and with that, personal freedom. How? By starting with a small amount of money and following a step-by-step process to use that money to generate a profit that can be successively reinvested to provide progressively increasing returns until the ultimate objective is fulfilled.

As you become more successful, my hope is that you will pause to look back on your accomplishment and realize the blessings you've received. I hope that with your success, and with the success of the Club, we all will fulfill the commandment to help our fellow man/woman as we work to make the world a better, more pleasant place for all.

May your journey be enjoyable, rewarding, and fulfilling.
